2017 American Renaissance Conference

Turning the Tide

At the 2015 American Renaissance conference, Peter Brimelow predicted it might take “only one speech” to awaken the Historic American Nation to its demographic plight. At the 2016 conference, he made a new prediction: It might take “only one election.” Was Donald Trump’s victory the turning point we’ve been hoping for?

Join us for a weekend of candor, fellowship, and top-notch speakers, as we celebrate the shifting political tides and discuss the way forward for White America and the Western World.

Speakers will include:

	Peter Brimelow — “The Trump Report Card—So Far” Mr. Brimelow is the editor of VDARE.com, and the author of Alien Nation: Common Sense About America’s Immigration Disaster.
	Martin Lichtmesz — “New Beginnings: Nationalist Movements in Austria and Germany.” Mr. Lichtmesz is a member of the think tank, Institut für Staatspolitik, a frequent contributor to the German New Right magazine Sezession, and an expert on nationalist movements in central Europe. He translated The Camp of the Saints into German, and has written several books on identitarian themes. He lives in Vienna.
	Tara McCarthy — “Virtue of the West: The Rise of a New Counter-Culture?” Miss McCarthy is the host of “Reality Calls,” and the co-host of “Virtue of the West,” in which she discusses the cultural shifts that must take place within the next 50 years in order for Western man to survive.
	Helmuth Nyborg — “What Made Europe Great and What Could Destroy It.” Dr. Nyborg is retired professor emeritus of developmental psychology at Aarhus University, Denmark. His research on sex differences in IQ and the consequences of Third-World immigration to Europe have created great controversy in Denmark. He was officially accused of “scientific dishonesty,” a charge against which he successfully defended himself. He won a bronze medal for his country in sprint canoeing at the Rome Olympics in 1960.
	Jared Taylor — “Has the White Man Turned the Corner?” Mr. Taylor is editor of American Renaissance. He is the author of Paved With Good Intentions, and the primary contributor to the collection A Race Against Time. His latest book is White Identity: Racial Consciousness in the 21st Century.
Sam Dickson — “A Benediction for Heretics.” Mr. Dickson is an
